CALL FOR PAPERS

The Australasian Heat and Mass Transfer Conference is a regular research forum in Australia organised under the auspices of the Australasian Fluid and Thermal Engineering Society (AFTES) for disseminating new knowledge to the global research community. This conference series covers both fundamental and applied topics in broad areas of convection, conduction, radiation, turbulence, multi-phase flow, combustion, drying, heat exchangers, computational methods, experimental methods, and other significant thermal processes in environmental, industrial and fire studies. The conferences have previously been held in Melbourne (1973), Sydney (1977), Melbourne (1985), Christchurch (1989), Brisbane (1993), Sydney (1996), Townsville (2000) and Perth (2005). The Ninth Australasian Heat and Mass Transfer Conference (9AHMTC) will be organised by Monash University and will be held during 24-26 February 2010 in Melbourne, Victoria Australia.

Researchers planning to present a paper at the Ninth Australasian Heat and Mass Transfer Conference must complete the attached Pre-registration Form electronically using Adobe Reader and return the saved PDF file to 9AHMTC@gmail.com before or on the 13 November 2009. Pre-registered authors will receive an electronic template to enable them to prepare their paper.

Please pre-register if you plan to attend the conference to assist us with planning.
